

BEFORE YOUR NEXT OFFICE VISIT...

Here are some health-related questions and topics you may want to raise with your urologist:

- Urination
- It takes me a long time to start and finish urinating.
  - Is it normal to have a little leakage after urinating?
  - Is painful urination a sign I'm getting older or something else?
  - Can a man get a urinary tract infection?
- Sexual Health
- My erection feels soft. Do I have erectile dysfunction?
  - I have pain in my testicles.
  - I feel something on my testicles or scrotum.
  - Can a man break his penis?
  - I noticed what looks like blood in my semen. Is that normal?
  - Why does it hurt when I ejaculate?
  - My semen smells funky. Is that right?
  - Is a curved penis normal? What can be done about it?
  - What is the normal range of penis size? Can you make mine larger?
  - I'm not as interested in sex as I once was. Is this a normal part of aging?
- Men's Exams
- When do I need a prostate exam?
  - Should I have my testosterone levels checked?
- Kidney Health
- I'm feeling extreme pain in (my lower back, side, groin). Is this a sign of kidney stones?
  - How are kidney stones treated?
  - Is it okay to take a daily calcium supplement?

This is not a comprehensive list of questions. Talk to your urologist about any symptoms that may be concerning to you.
